Thank you for your interest! I will try to publish more asap. About the author on the last page. Let's get to business first. Perhaps you already figured out some languages that are in the mix. An unintentional puzzle as a side effect of not having time at all. Here are some fun cognates. More l8r. edit 2026-04-19: Hehee, anniversary of this project, here you go, more to follow, thanks for the encouragement!! 1 30 cognates so far? I am not sure because it's hard to count. Only a tiny slice of the alphabet done. Expect some paradigm shifts in the next list of h0t sh1tz0r!

Well, there was some skin, but that's not what I meant when I wrote the next lines!

Next item on the list:

LATEX, FUR, AND FEATHERS

no wait sorry I meant SKIN of course this is the Neolithic... what was I thinking... I must've been crazy....

I will put it up ASAFP but now no time for more... enjoy!

I'd Do Anything for Love (But I Won't Do That)

Since grammatical connections are the top of the tops, here are kinship words. A great sociobiological technology to reduce inbreeding, very useful in small populations.

PDY	* lejn-ej	‘son-in-law’;	PU	*wänew / *wänewe
			PU	*miinä
			PU	*pojka
PDY	* gaj-ej	‘parent’s sibling’;	PU	*šečä
			PU	*nejde
			PU	*näjte
			PU	*äjjä
		‘parent’s elder sibling’
PDY	* web-ej		P-Samic	*eanōj	maternal
			P-Finnic	*tüttöi	uncle

Note how in Proto-Uralic and some daughter languages, all kinship words have either -w or -j / -i in some form, except šečä*, but I will come to that later.

In Proto-Finnic, if we suppose “daughter”, tüt'är*, is a loan from an Indo-European language, the form tüttoi* should prove the kinship suffix was still partly productive at that point in time.

Must be a coincidence. More will follow. Get your Lotto sheets ready.

Fine, one more. Three “coincidental homonyms” betwixt Yukaghir and Finnic! What are the odds!

Mechanism in short: debuccal. in PYuk, j ↔ g, metathesis, first vowel rises a-u. CU again soon<3

Proto-Yukaghir

öyur*

K ugur spine, ridge; KJ ugur

K ugurčə ski with fur on the bottom; KJ ugurče; SD ugurce; T ugurče foot; shoes, boots; TK ugurt'e + leg; TJ ugurče; TD ugurče, -uogurče

K ugurče: grayling (Thymallus);

Proto-Finnic

harjus* grayling (Thymallus thymallus)

harja* mane / bristle / crest, comb / brush / ridge (of a roof, a hill)

(Yes I know, “Borrowed from Proto-Baltic”. but I would not bet on it any more... ;P)

Swadesh lists are useful and the concept is nice, especially considering that Wikipedia says “The Swadesh list was put together by Morris Swadesh on the basis of his intuition.”. Hee hee! What an awesome dude <3

He worked mostly in the warmer regions of the world, including tropics. Lucky chap! Now I do not want to nitpick but the list shows some preference to non-colder regions of the world.

This presents certain challenges in using regular Swadesh lists as tools in comparing the more northern languages. As a amusing side note, the new and sexy Leipzig–Jakarta list to test the degree of chronological separation of languages does not even have the word “cold” in it, whereas when I go to Wiktionary’s https://en.wiktionary.org/wiki/Appendix:Proto-Uralic_reconstructions I can get 23 hits on the page with the word “snow” alone. I reckon this is a sufficient demonstration that a new Swadesh list fine-tuned for north would be useful, or at least it is understandable when I say that I’d better make one instead of continuing to complain here... Up and coming next! SeeY’All!?
